BEGINNER LESSON
In the falconry beginner’s lesson, you have an opportunity to interact with a variety of captive-bred, trained birds of prey. At the flying grounds, you can watch as hawks fly free, and return to a guide for small morsels of food. Get an up-close look at several endangered species, including several hawks, falcons, eagles and owls. You will also enjoy the engaging discussion on the history of falconry.

An unforgettable experience, the Falconry Foundation Beginner Lesson culminates with each participant donning a custom falconry glove and being photographed with one of our trained falcons.

Please wear comfortable shoes and weather appropriate clothing, and be sure to bring your camera—this is a rare photographic experience you won’t want to miss.

INTERMEDIATE LESSON
Once you’ve had a taste of falconry during the beginner’s lesson, you’ll want to book an intermediate lesson—an amazing, hands-on excursion with a trained Harris Hawk.

Accompanied by an expert guide, you’ll venture out onto one of The Broadmoor’s scenic trails. Once there, you will don a falconry glove, and have a trained hawk placed on your gloved fist. Under supervision of our expert, you will cast the hawk into a nearby pine and watch as it follows you from tree to tree, returning right to your glove for a small reward. This is a once in a lifetime experience.

AND LESSONS

Do you want to create a memorable night for your employees or clients? Consider reserving the exceptional falconers and birds provided by The Falconry Foundation.

During your cocktail hour, falconers and birds will mingle with guests, talk about the natural history of the birds, discuss the history of falconry and conduct a flying demonstration.

Don’t have time during your cocktail hour? Reserve a private lesson just for the members of your group. During this private hour, your guests will have a chance to spend time, in a small group setting with a falconer and several birds. Typically, your guests will have a chance to see hawks, falcons, eagles and owls at our flying field. After discussing the birds and their natural history, and viewing the birds in action, guests will have a chance to don a falconry glove and have their photo taken with one of our trained birds of prey.

If you’re looking for a great way to really see The Broadmoor Property — or a really fun way to get your heart pumping — come give Orienteering a try.

Known as “the thinking man’s running game,” Orienteering is a fast-paced and exciting challenge that tests your map and compass reading skills. Following a brief instruction period on either map and compass or GPS principles, teammates must work together to collaboratively navigate a preset course through the woods. Once you’ve reached a checkpoint marked on a detailed map, you punch your card with a distinct punch, available only at that checkpoint.

In order to succeed, teams must rely on the skills and knowledge of their teammates. Upon completion of the course, the facilitator has an opportunity to explore with the group, their leadership styles, the way they reacted to ambiguity, and their overall group decision making process.

CONCEPT
At The Broadmoor Leadership Center, we believe in learning by doing. Take a group of people with varied interests, skills and backgrounds, put them together in an outdoor setting, present them with a challenging situation, and watch the learning begin. All of our adventure learning activities are geared at creating experiences from which a team can learn team-based skills that can be implemented in an office setting.

TEAM BUILDING PHILOSOPHY
Founded on the principle that “the company that laughs together lasts”, The Broadmoor Leadership Center is here to bring your meeting to life, revitalize existing teams, and help you take your team members to new heights. We’ve built a reputation by creating innovative team building programs that develop strong, productive teams.

APPROACH
From the moment of first contact, The Broadmoor Leadership Center works with you as a partner. The content, flow and details of your experience will be custom designed, based on your stated goals and desired outcomes. Our creative process is an interactive one. Once we’ve designed a custom program, we look to all parties involved for input and ideas. This winning formula, will help you and your team achieve their goals.

Whether you choose to have us facilitate understanding and team cohesion through the use of The Myers Briggs Type Indicator, or decide to reach for the clouds on our Vertical Challenge, we can design a program that will be both meaningful and memorable for the members of your team.

LEADERSHIP
Our President, Duane Zobrist, passionately believes in experiential based training and development. He was first introduced to the experiential concept while earning his Masters Degree in Public Administration, and has been a proponent of its’ strengths from that point onward. Duane is involved in the program design and often in the facilitation as well.

Duane’s enthusiasm and desire for everyone to excel seems almost infectious. Whether your team is learning the skills necessary to navigate our orienteering course, learning to find your way with a GPS, or learning the nuts and bolts of the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator, Duane and his staff are here to infuse a combination of humor and success.

LOCATION
Located in the mountains of Colorado, our office sits on the property of one of America’s preeminent resorts, The Broadmoor. The combination of our skilled facilitators, quality equipment, and meeting resources of The Broadmoor, guarantees your training or team building event will be a success. Whether you are interested in an indoor organizational effectiveness workshop, such as Personal Preferences and Team Performance, or are looking to galvanize your team’s relationships, we have the resources to make it happen.
ARE INDIVIDUAL DIFFERENCES WORKING FOR OR AGAINST YOUR TEAM?
Experience a powerful transformation as we spend a day sharpening your team’s performance from the inside out. Through the use of the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator© we will identify various personality preferences of team members and define your team’s profile. Understanding group and personal dynamics is an invaluable tool for creating a new team synergy and achieving new levels of performance.

DOES SITTING IN A MEETING ROOM, TALKING ABOUT PSYCHOLOGICAL TYPE PREFERENCES SEEM LIKE A WAY TO ENERGIZE A TEAM?
We don’t think so! The Broadmoor Leadership Center has coupled personal insights gained from this classic personality type indicator with engaging and challenging activities, which yield powerful new perspectives at the individual and team levels.

A TEAM APPROACH
By examining personal and team preferences, you will learn to identify team strengths and possible blind spots. Nothing is more important to organizational success than a collaborative management team. Occasionally, collaboration can be a challenge within a group of intelligent, hard-driving senior managers. The insights gained by experiencing personal preferences in action can convert this challenge from a source of team conflict to a source of strength dramatically increasing team productivity.
STRATEGIC OUTCOMES

Our goal is to create opportunities for your team to experience personal preferences or psychological type in action. By including interactive challenges into this Myers-Briggs workshop, your team will glean a deeper understanding of this powerful team development tool.

Your team will:
• Identify areas of strength and possible team blind spots
• Clarify team behavior
• Match team assignments and personal preferences
• Provide a framework to better identify and diffuse conflict
• Define the inherent strengths and challenges of your team, both in working together and with employees

This adventure includes multi-sensory puzzlers, physical challenges, problem solving tasks, building challenges and kinetic game playing. And guess what? Our proprietary app keeps track of your progress and let’s the other teams know where they stand on the leaderboard.

The experience begins with a fun brain tweaker that helps spread the teams departure times by a few minutes. Once the race starts, each team can use taxis, rental cars, scooters or whatever other mode of transportation they choose, to race around the chosen location. One caveat: they must always stay together as a team.

Teams will complete photo challenges, unlock clues using QR codes, find hints with bluetooth beacons, decipher gps coordinates and experience augmented reality as they navigate their way through the challenges, all while documenting the teams progress on our proprietary app.

CUSTOMIZATION
The challenges and clues are customized to reflect your unique location as well as emphasize the unique aspects of your corporate culture. You can select from a huge and exciting assortment of challenges that require a variety of personal and team skills. You may choose based on your company goals for this team builder or let us select for you. Either way, the challenge will be themed to the specific locale. Start wherever you wish, go wherever you like, and finish wherever you choose. Did we mention that we can design an Scavenger Ox to run in any city you choose? It is truly a versatile platform for a team dynamics program; completely adaptable to your needs, group size and location!

Imagine building a beautiful family home nestled amidst rolling hills and manicured lawns of The Broadmoor...nice? No way. After it is built, you realize you and the neighbors are simply incompatible. The solution, talk it out and come to some agreement, or pull out your secret weapon, the Domestic Demolition Cannon. You decide the only way to recover your view and regain your piece of mind is demolition. Little did you know, your neighbors have the same plan, they decide to try and level your newly constructed home by using a high velocity projectile cannon. The only recourse...level theirs! In this game, each team will build a palatial scale model of their ideal home out of material provided. Then it will be placed on the firing range to become cannon fodder.

During this unforgettable game, teams build a structure out of the materials provide. The materials may include foam core, dowels, epoxy, yardsticks, or other similar items. The finished houses are anywhere from 1-3 feet tall and exhibit the constructing team’s uniqueness. Once built, we move them to our firing range where teams have a chance to demolish each other’s creations using custom designed pneumatic cannons that fire everything from tennis balls to eggs. Combine the need for collaboration, creativity and destruction and your team will have an afternoon to remember.

The Battle of the Bridges has been called “Wile E. Coyote meets Frank Lloyd Wright”. Get the picture? No? Okay I’ll lay it out for you. The Battle of the Bridges is one of the dastardliest challenges ever designed by the minds of The Broadmoor Leadership Center. We’ve applied a huge dose of testosterone and a tsunami of Jolt Cola to design this building challenge to end all building challenges.

Teams are provided with the materials and tools to build a bridge spanning a 2-foot wide river. What materials, what tools you say? Each team is equipped with a Black & Decker workmate, power drill, saws, screwdrivers, wire rope, worktables, lumber, screws, and other construction items. Once the design and construction is complete, the bridges, along with a can of soda (cleverly disguised as an atomic fuel cell), are placed in the Atomic Pulverizer; a pneumatic ram, powered wedge robot capable of applying enough force to crush a small tank. The angst of the group, watching the Pulverizer slowly extend its evil looking ram towards its next bridge victim is palpable. The fiendish machine measures the amount of force the bridge supports before the can of soda under the bridge finally explodes all over the blast shields.

Teams must make a myriad of decisions regarding the design of their bridge, location of their support towers and a host of other issues during construction. Scoring is not only based on the pressure the bridge supports but also the width of the span, efficient use of materials and quality of construction.

This is an exercise in collaboration, inventory control, speed, creativity, building skills and many other key challenges found in business situations every single day. The Atomic Pulverizer will teach your team the meaning of PRESSURE!

Everyone knows the company with the greatest fire or passion is often the most successful. What is preventing your teams’ success? A common road block to success is inter-departmental competition. In today’s competitive business market, teams often forget the synergy that comes from collaboration and tend to automatically compete with their key associates.

Fun, exhilarating and mentally demanding, FireQuest is designed to spotlight the importance of collaboration and demonstrate the natural tendency of most teams to unnecessarily compete. After an introduction to the program concepts, teams are introduced to many new challenges, all designed to promote inter-team collaboration. As teams learn the skills necessary to use a GPS unit, and then locate specific locations around the resort property, they experience the importance of utilizing the natural skills of each team member.

During FireQuest, team members must seek out a variety of checkpoints that are assigned different values determined by ease of access, distance and difficulty, while racing against the clock. Planning and communication are vital for success. While completing the GPS course, each team collects the tools necessary to build a small fire using flint and steel. In order to successfully start the fire, a team must utilize every piece retrieved. Much like the workplace team, if one element is under used or missing, success can be near impossible to achieve.

After an extensive debrief, teams will understand the natural tendency to compete automatically, even when competition is unnecessary. As a reminder of the lessons learned, each team member takes home a custom designed fire kit to help reinforce the lessons learned.

Navigate your way through the woods with a map and compass. Determine the best way to cross a river. Pedal a mountain bike circuit. Overcome obstacles placed in your path.

Fun, exhilarating and mentally demanding, The Broadmoor Challenge is definitely one of our most popular family and team-building activities. Based on the sport of adventure racing, The Broadmoor Challenge requires a group to work together, collaborating to develop a strategy to accumulate points.

During The Challenge, team members must seek out a variety of checkpoints that are assigned different values determined by ease of access, distance and difficulty, while racing against the clock. Planning and communication are vital for success. The most effective teams assess the individual member’s strengths and use their resources to successfully pass through as many checkpoints as possible to maximize their score.

The Broadmoor Challenge is very flexible and is custom designed to meet the specific goals of your group. Thanks to its flexibility, The Broadmoor Challenge is perfect for groups of any size – and participants of all ages can compete on an even scale. Whether you're trying to build a workplace team's esprit-de-corps or looking for a different and fun way to spend an afternoon with your friends and family, The Broadmoor Challenge is the way to go.
